

The Winter Window Washers continued

“Would you please tell me why you wash your windows in the winter?” asked Theodore.

Grandma chuckled. “No one has ever bothered to ask me for my secret, but I’ll be happy to tell you,” she said. “Every winter, this giant snowdrift grows right under my windows. I don’t have a ladder, but when the snowdrift is big enough, I can climb up and wash my windows without one!”

Theodore laughed. “That is a good reason,” he said.

Then he helped Grandma finish scrubbing her windows, because even Theodore was big enough when he stood on the giant snowdrift.
